NEW BAND OFFICERS of the championship Georgetown High School Band eagerly await results from judges concerning the state contest of

GHS Band named 'Outstanding in Region'

Tapes of three songs played by the Georgetown High School Band were judged in regional competition and Georgetown was not only one of the five top honor bands but was named the Outstanding Band in the Region. Gonzales and A & M were second and third.

The tapes will now be sent to state competition on July 27. If Georgetown wins first place, the band will perform at the Texas Music Education Association Convention next February.

State Solo and Ensemble contests were held at The University of Texas on June 2.

Qualifying to enter solo competition was Sally Suh who placed II and Bart Jennings who placed III.

A saxophone quartet placed III: including Brian Todd, Ranel Stephenson, Myra Snell and Mike Liddell.

A woodwind trio including Janet Busby, Sally Suh and Celeste Lierman also entered the ensemble contest. Its rating was not available.

the passing glance

By Don Scarbrough

Everything has gotten too high.

When a fellow with gimpy legs and frozen knees can turn down a $4,000,000 offer to play football a few more years, as Joe Namath did recently, you have to know that things are out of kilter. Or when a couple of bruisers square off in a ring and people ante up ten or fifteen million bucks to see them dodge and swing at each other for forty-five minutes or less. Or when a Houston newspaper man sues a county sheriff $3 million for a fist whipping!

WHO EVER HEARD of such a thing? There is no way to justify these figures, especially the last one. There should be a reasonable price tag put on whipping a reporter or an editor, large enough to take all the fun out of it but still sensible enough to offer restraint to the writer's acid pen.

There has been a day, especially around the first of the month when the bills came in, when I would have gladly taken a fist whipping for a hundred smackers. That, of course, was before inflation set in. Now I would sue for considerably more, but certainly no more than $25,000, which is the top figure I would suggest for whipping any country editor. Houston or New York editors, of course, should be more expensive, because hospitalization and healing and face-saving comes higher in those places.

Just plain reporters, like that Houston fellow who exposed the La Grange Chicken Farm and got his head skinned by the sheriff, shouldn't be allowed to sue for more than $10,000, which is as much as most Houston reporters make in a year at their regular jobs. A whipping followed by a stomping, of course, should bring in a lot of extra cash. I have never seen the necessity of hitting a fellow when he's down, even if he is an editor or reporter.

THIS COUNTRY EDITOR slipped his mind by a decade when he wrote of the SUN's more recent history in the Thursday paper. Only 2 of Southwestern University's main buildings that stood when I left the campus in 1938, not 1948, as I said in the article, stand intact today, although several smaller structures remain. That's not counting the Woman's Building, now Kuykendall Hall, which has doubled in size with the addition of Kurth Hall. When I returned to Georgetown in 1948, in addition to Mood and the Ad Building, Cody Memorial Library, West Gymnasium and the McCook-Crane Clinic had been built. But a lot more followed in the next two decades. If you clip historical articles and save them, please make the correction.

Probably because of the critical article I ran here several months ago on the pistol post office competing with private business in the duplicating business, the venture is to be abandoned throughout the entire U.S.A.! According to an article I read this week, copying machines will be removed from all postoffice when present leases expire.

Commission discusses subdivision regulations

Georgetown Planning and Zoning Commissioners expected a short meeting Wednesday night, until they began to discuss a current controversy over the regulations concerning resubdivision of land.

The commission actually had only one item on its agenda to consider, because two persons

Bicentennial applies for financial aid for Hike and Bike Trail

The Georgetown Bicentennial Commission has taken the first step toward securing partial state financial aid to develop a Hike and Bike Trail near San Gabriel Park.

City Manager Leo Wood, heading the effort for the Bi-Centennial Commission, said Thursday night the group is seeking a grant from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department in the form of 50-50 matching funds.

The Commission has made a preliminary application through the Capital Area Planning Council (CAPCO), which is a clearing house in Austin for such requests.

CAPCO's Review Committee will study the application and submit its findings to the agency's Executive Committee, which meets June 17.

Wood said the Executive Committee would probably decide at that meeting whether to recommend the application to the Parks and Wildlife Department.

"We feel confident the application will be approved," Wood commented, adding, "Dee Scott has already agreed to donate two acres of land to the Bicentennial Commission for the trail."

Regarding ultimate action by the Parks and Wildlife Dept., Wood said, "We should probably have something nailed down by October."

The proposed trail is one of two currently in planning, for Georgetown.

It would begin near the Georgetown VFW post, Wood said, cross the San Gabriel by a low-water bridge near the junction of the North and South branches, and continue into San Gabriel Park.

The other Hike and Bike Trail is proposed for the Scenic Drive area. It would actually be two trails, one for hiking, the other for bicyclers.

That project is under the direction of a committee composed of representatives from the Georgetown Urban Renewal Authority, Williamson-Burnet Opportunities Inc., the Bicentennial Commission, and civic leaders.

scheduled to present proposals to the commission failed to appear. Harold Parker was expected to present preliminary plans for a residential development near Gabriel View Drive, and Evalyn Howe was to have petitioned the committees' permission to begin a trailer park on W. Morrow.

When it became obvious neither resident would appear, the commission routinely passed the city's request to abandon part of West Street, between 8th and 9th Streets, to the local Urban Renewal agency as part of the Scenic Drive development.

Commissioners also approved two other small plats, received a copy each of the City's new subdivision ordinance for study, and determined that provisions of the ordinance are not retroactive to plats approved before its passage.

Asst. City Manager W. L. Walden then directed the commission's attention to a dispute concerning interpretation of the state law regarding resubdivision.

Things got muddy from there.

Walden explained to the commissioners that land developers acquiring lots for resubdivision within Georgetown's city limits or Extraterritorial Jurisdiction (ETJ) may be required by the County to submit a vacating ordinance along with their plat.

The vacating ordinance is a document declaring the area no longer a subdivision and nullifying previous deed restrictions on the lots in question.

Walden explained this does not mean that any property owner forfeits land, but that the document must be signed by all property owners in the subdivision where a resubdivision is to occur.

Since city ordinance does not require a subdivider to submit a vacating ordinance, Walden told the group, the Planning and Zoning Commission might accidentally approve plats which would later be rejected by the County.

He added that this is not the case in Travis County, where county officials accept any plats approved by the City of Austin for land development within Austin's City Limits or ETJ.

He said Williamson County interprets the state law containing the vacating provision differently than does Travis County, and advised that this discourages developers from submitting plats for resubdivision.

Walden then requested the commission to determine whether it would require resubdividers to submit a vacating ordinance.

Commissioner Fred Hagemann opined that the commission has no authority to determine

GHS students prefer beer

More than other drugs

By Beulah Gilbreath

Sixty-eight percent of Georgetown High School students said they use alcoholic beverages at least occasionally, a drug survey conducted by the SUN revealed.

That percentage indicates that young people are continuing a trend set by adults. Survey results published in 1971 by the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare said that 68 percent of the people surveyed across the United States drink alcoholic beverages.

That survey indicated that a minimum of 10 percent of those adults have a "drinking problem."

SIX PERCENT OF THE STUDENTS said they drink alcoholic beverages daily.

PERCENTAGES DROP greatly with the use of other drugs including marijuana, with only 23 percent claiming to have used that drug. Only two students of these surveyed said they had used heroin and less than five percent indicated they have used cocaine, LSD (acid) and speed (methamphetamine).

One hundred and thirty seniors, 48 juniors, 91 sophomores, and 60 freshmen totaling half of the student body returned the surveys.

Sixty-six percent of the students answered "no" to "Do you feel the use of marijuana should be legalized?" Only 17 percent answered yes for legalization and 14 percent answered maybe.

ATTITUDES SEEM TO SHIFT between freshmen and seniors with only five percent of the freshmen supporting legalization. That percentage increased to 22 by the senior year.

However, 83 percent of the freshmen said they used alcoholic beverages occasionally with that percentage dropping to 55 by the senior year.

A similar survey conducted by Round Rock High School sophomore Desi Dahlin indicated 41 percent of those students thought marijuana should be legalized.

Of those GHS students admitting they have used marijuana, 13 percent said they use it daily, 12 percent on weekends, 39 percent occasionally and 32 percent only once or twice.

Only 18 percent of the GHS students said they would try marijuana if it were legalized and made readily available, compared to 48 percent in Round Rock High.

AT LEAST 29 PERCENT of the students said they have never used drugs including alcohol.

All of the students who have used marijuana, cocaine, speed, and LSD had also used alcoholic beverages.

Thirty-two percent said they had been approached by someone trying to sell them marijuana, but less than five percent had been approached by someone trying to sell them any other drug, with speed and LSD appearing to be most available.

Thirty-five percent said they knew a student who could supply them with drugs, compared to 60 percent in Round Rock who knew a student supplier.

To the question, "Is there an adult, other than a teacher, counselor or principal who you could consult about a problem relating to drugs?" 52 percent answered "yes", 32 percent "no", and 15 percent "maybe."

GEORGETOWN and ROUND ROCK students agree that drugs are a contributing factor in the increasing crime rate.

Sixty-six percent said their opinion of a friend or classmate who uses marijuana or alcoholic beverages is lessened with several students marking through alcoholic beverages indicating only marijuana would lessen their opinion. Twenty-one percent said their opinion would neither be lessened or improved.

GHS Principal Dr. Elroy Otte said survey results were no surprise. He had thought only a small percentage of the students use marijuana. He did express some surprise, however, at the high percentage of students who said they use alcoholic beverages.

Willie Nelson to explain July 4 picnic

Country-rock singer Willie Nelson is scheduled to attend a meeting at 3 p. m. Tuesday in the Williamson County Court room concerning the "Willie Nelson third annual July 4 picnic" to be held near Liberty Hill.

The picnic and music fest is advertising performers such as Kris Kristofferson, Rita Coolidge, the Pointer Sisters, Charlie Daniels Band and others. Steve Kirk, on Nelson's promotion staff, estimated a crowd of approximately 8,000.

"Deep concern is mounting in Liberty Hill," County Commissioner Wesley Foust said Thursday.

So much concern that a citizens group, represented by Foust hired McMaster and Garay law firm to represent their interest in the matter.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY Bill Connor said Tuesday's meeting will not be a formal hearing.

"Some concern has been stated as to how the picnic and music fest will be held," Connor said.

Nelson has agreed to meet with County Attorney Norman Manning, Commissioners Foust and Wesley Johnson and others to talk about their plans for holding the picnic. They are cooperating with us. They are not required to show up," Connor explained.

Manning said if an injunction was filed by the county to prevent the concert, if no proof could be gathered to establish that the promoters had broken the law, Nelson would sue the county on July 5.

"We need some proof they are breaking the law before we file an injunction," Manning said.

The picnic is scheduled to be held west of Liberty Hill off FM 1869. Foust explained that persons traveling to the site would be required to pass through Liberty Hill.

Two years ago the first Nelson Fourth of July picnic was held in Dripping Springs. Music reviewers lauded the fest as "the day country music came of age."

Week's news in a nutshell

UNEMPLOYMENT BENEFITS FOR TEACHERS was nixed by the state school finance bill signed by Gov. Dolph Briscoe Friday. The bill included a provision to prevent school personnel with a signed contract for next fall from drawing the $65 weekly during the summer.

Two hundred and eighty school employees from Williamson County filed claims Monday and Tuesday for the benefits. Representatives from Texas Employment Commission were at the new Georgetown High School to process claims for Williamson County employees.

THE WILLIAMSON COUNTY SUN entered its 98th year of continuous publication with the Thursday issue of the paper.

GEORGETOWN INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT utility rates are predicted to double with the opening of the new $2.2 million high school next fall. Business Manager Jerry Graham estimated that utility bills for the new high school will average $2000 a month, the same amount required to operate all four campuses during 1974-75 school year.

GEORGETOWN HAULED out its fogger Monday night to combat a mosquito invasion spawned by recent rains. This year's spraying project began in the northeast section of town and was scheduled to continue through the week until the city is covered.

SOUTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY announced its summer enrollment in the second session of summer school broke another record as 133 on-campus students registered Tuesday.

It was Georgetown

Today I saw traffic stop on a green light to let an elderly lady cross a busy intersection. I paused to see young people swim and adults fish in a spring-fed river. A myriad of oleander blossoms caught my eye on almost every street.

I had a chat with some college students beside a lovely fountain on a green, shady campus. As I walked down the avenue, people I met spoke warmly to me and as I visited the hospital I sensed concern and compassion in the errands of healing.

A neighbor stopped by to express concern about another neighbor who is sick and in the hospital. On my way across town I passed a baseball diamond where the competition was intense, but friendly.

It was windy and the live oak and pecan trees bowed and swayed in their luxurious way, springing back in the moments of calm. Back at the church I heard preparations being made for a wedding — music, flowers, and excited friends and family made the atmosphere warm and festive.

I looked out my window at a group of children playing on the trampoline in my yard. They were black, white, brown, exuberant.

I glanced over the list of 14 high school youth who have volunteered to give a week of their summer to be counselors in a wilderness day camp for youngsters who have no other camping opportunity. I knew I would share that camp with them and with fellow ministers across our denominational lines. It made me glad to think of it again.

As I was leaving, a destitute transient appeared, looking for a warm meal and a place to spend the rainy night. I could help him, because my church makes provisions for people in need.

I walked home, looking out on my green neighborhood and up at the silver spire of the church in its midst. I reflected on the sights and sounds and feelings of living one day in this place.

Where was I? I was in Georgetown.

Every community has its shortcomings, and I do not mean to intimate that we do not. We do. But they are heavily outweighed by our opportunities. The old admonition, "Bloom where you're planted" flashed into my mind. Everything else is blooming; maybe we'd better join in!

Stuart Long Austin Notebook

AUSTIN—It was something past 2 a.m. Monday morning, the last day of the legislative session, when legislative staff members were told by the Senate-House conference committee to do a rewrite job on the bill creating a State Public Utilities Commission.

It was a job requiring the rest of the night, and the three young men who had the job were discussing it in the Capitol elevator.

The one who appeared to be in charge told the two underlings what to do.

"You two decide which one will stay and tell the girls what to do."

So, between 2 a.m. and 10 a.m., an extremely tired young man with scribbled notes, and some probably equally tired "girls", put together the first state utility regulation bill in Texas history. If it doesn't have some errors, it's either a miracle or a testimonial to the young people under 25 who did the work, and the older veteran House employees who supervised and checked to see that it was right.

Nearly as tired legislators came back into meeting at 10 a.m. and after making some changes, adopted the conference committee report. It was then "cleaned up" by other typists, or perhaps by those who had been up all night. A few hours later, both houses adopted it and Texas was in the business of regulating some utility rates some of the time.

The $12 billion appropriation bill to run all of state government was put together in similarly hurried fashion. Here it is, nearly an inch thick, printed on both sides of 8½ by 14 inch pages, and gathered together by tired young people who had been working so many hours that Rep. Nick Nichols of Houston, a labor union official when he is not legislating, caused consternation in the House by demanding to know whether House employees were being paid time and a half for their overtime work.

At any rate, on that last day of the legislative session, because of time wasted in the 139 previous days, this big 455-page bill was typed, sometimes with the help of computer-controlled typewriters, and sometimes by plain old manual typing.

The staffs had to type those bills and resolutions in letter-perfect form, print them, assemble them, and bring them back for signature by Lieut. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton, to send them to the governor, or to the comptroller, depending on whether or not they spent money.

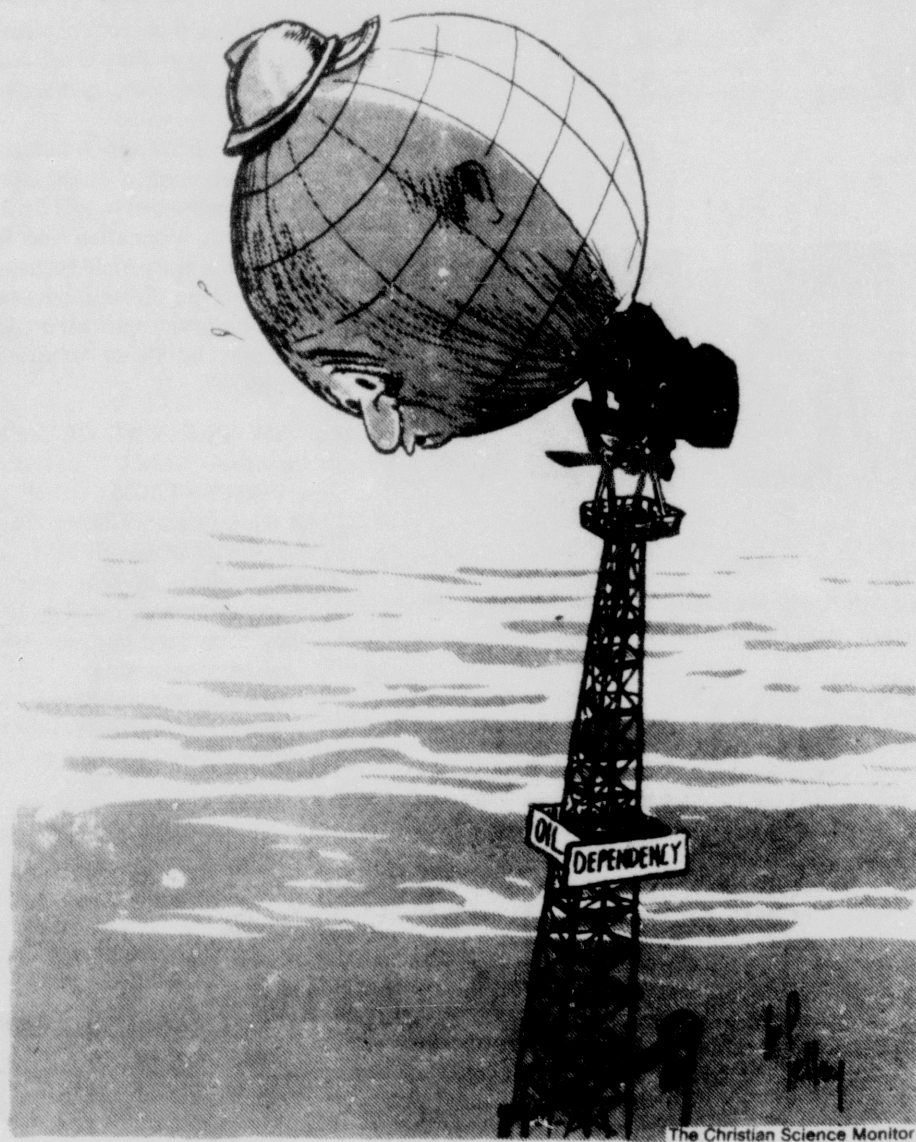

So, of the several hundred copies of the big 455-page appropriations bill printed, the one which happened to be selected for the "official copy" had been subject to a printing press mistake. It had fed two pages at once, sometime during those hectic hours, and while Page III-81 was printed, containing appropriations for the Board of Examiners in the Fitting and Dispensing of Hearing Aids and the first half of the Highway Department money, was printed, the back, Page III-82, was blank.

Capitol newsmen laughed at that one, Lehman Marks, executive director of the hearing aid board, is suing to get space in the Capitol Pressrooms for his family's "news service." If his side of the page had been blank, he would have sworn that it was a plot!

Now, Atty. Gen. John Hill is trying to explain for Comptroller Bob Bullock how to get around calling a special session of the Legislature to re-enact Page III-82. After all, it just contains $790,519,303 for the year starting Sept. 1 and $816,825,138 the next year for state highway construction and maintenance. It is perhaps the next to most expensive page in the whole bill.

But there are other problems. The conference committee put in 135 college building projects, in defiance of the belief by Gov. Dolph Briscoe and a majority of the Legislature that there should be no college building except that approved by the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System.

AUSTIN — In a session that stretched until three in the morning, the House has tackled the medical malpractice controversy and passed two bills of a three-bill package designed to insure adequate malpractice insurance to doctors at fair rates.

The yearly cost of malpractice insurance has jumped a few thousand dollars to more than $40,000 for many doctors, forcing them to consider either closing their doors or moving to another state to practice. Texas — especially rural Texas — cannot afford to lose the doctors it has now, making it doubly important to correct the malpractice problem before it gets out of hand.

The House approved a bill creating a joint malpractice fund among Texas insurance companies; this will let the companies share the cost of malpractice cases and help reduce premiums. Also approved was a measure giving malpractice rate-setting power to the State Board of Insurance.

The House rejected a third bill which would have limited malpractice settlements to $100,000 for individual claims and $500,000 for multiple malpractice claims.

The two bills which did pass will do a great deal to improve the malpractice problem in Texas. However, until some limit is placed on settlements, the insurance companies will keep paying settlements ranging into the millions, and someone will have to foot the bill. I thought the $100,000 and $500,000 limits were within reason.

APPROPRIATIONS BILL
READY: A House-Senate conference committee has completed an $11 billion appropriations bill, the largest in the state's history. I voted against the original House appropriations bill because it contained so much needless spending, and I feel the same way about the conference committee bill.

In a time when we should be cutting every penny we can from government spending, the appropriations committee plans to spend money on things like this: $155,000 for a naval museum; half a million on a convention hall; and $150,000 for a Railroad Commission study. And the salaries of bureaucrats continue to increase by outlandish rates; the welfare commissioner, for instance, will get a salary increase from $32,500 to $42,300 next year.

This type of spending is foolish. It drains away dollars we need for school finance and other programs, and it virtually insures a tax bill two years from now. My vote against this appropriations bill is not against the many fine programs it contains; my vote means I oppose needless spending which will inevitably shackle Texans with higher taxes.

LCRA RESTS CASE: The Lower Colorado River Authority has completed its case against Coastal State Gas Company, the fuel supplier for many utilities in our part of Texas. Coastal has broken its contract by charging unreasonable high prices for natural gas, causing the "fuel adjustment" charges on our electric bills. Should the LCRA win this case, Coastal will have to lower its prices to levels included in the contract, which would mean lower utility bills for many of us.

UTILITIES, FARM BILLS: Meanwhile, both the House and Senate appointed conference committee members to produce a utility regulation bill. As I noted last week, the House has a far better bill, and I think the conference committee will have to produce a strong utility bill if they expect House approval.

The legislature has also sent the Governor a bill that will exempt tractors, goose-neck trailers and other farm vehicles from the state sales tax. This bill may not mean a tremendous savings to farmers, but it does stop taxing them on equipment necessary to their livelihoods. I supported this bill very strongly; farmers should not be unfairly taxed on the equipment they must have to produce a crop.

My offices are open Monday through Friday, and I do hope my constituents will get in touch if I may be of service. In Austin, my address is Box 2910, zip 78767, and my room number is G-66D. ## Green light for U.S. upturn

By Harry B. Ellis
Staff correspondent of The Christian Science Monitor

Across a broad range of measurements, the U.S. economy is signaling that the worst recession since World War II is bottoming out, though no one yet knows how strong or fast the recovery will be.

Ten out of 11 "leading indicators," measuring economic performance in a wide variety of ways, turned up in April, reported the U.S. Department of Commerce this week.

This cumulative increase — 4.2 percent, after correction for inflation — is the largest monthly upturn in history, according to the department. It follows a 1 percent gain in March.

This two-month rise follows 11 successive months of decline, strengthening the view that the long downslide of the U.S. economy — five quarters of falling production since the start of 1974 — is grinding to a halt.

Among the measurements moving up in April were increased orders for durable goods, more orders for manufacturers of consumer goods, declining wholesale prices for certain key product, a longer average workweek, a lower layoff rate, higher stock prices, and more building permits issued.

The composite index, said Alan Murray, vice-president and economist of the First National City Bank, "has a pretty good record" of foretelling when a recession will bottom out, "with a predictability of two months."

In past recessions, in other words, the leading indicators have begun to move decisively upward, about two months before the recession reached its trough.

However, cautioned Mr. Murray, "the index doesn't really tell us anything about the strength of the economy. It simply gives some confirmation of the evidence that the recession is bottoming out."

He noted also that the one April measurement that declined — a decrease in the nation's money supply — is a "crucial one," which must turn up before recovery can really take hold.

Experts warn that the nation's unemployment rate, now 8.9 percent, may continue to move up, even after the recession has bottomed out and recovery has begun.

Thus, many economists expect the jobless rate to top 9 percent and cling to that level for some time, before starting down.

This isn't supposed to be Paradise.

Paradise is being prepared somewhere else; we have to prove here that we deserve to be there.

BUT YOU JUNE GRADUATES this year have the world by the tail — if you can hang on.

The Class of '75 did a lot of theorizing on campus.

It theorized that we must preserve our environment at whatever cost to industry; that we must forego our preoccupation with prospering, growing and accumulating in favor of a "more meaningful lifestyle."

So we depopulated at the expense of industry, we relaxed more, loafed more, worked less.

And now this Class of '75 enters a job market which has shrunk 18% in one year.

ON CAMPUS THEY THEORIZED that society owed everybody an education; now they find their mass-produced degrees devalued.

This is not the first generation of graduates to feel put-upon; partly because the theorists put their faith in government, expecting government to re-establish Eden on earth — and no government can.

Graduates of the Thirties faced worse job problems than now. Graduates of the Forties went to war. Graduates of the Fifties faced cold wars. And graduates of the Sixties faced hot war again.

NOW, IN THE 1970s, planet earth is about to be re-energized from sources which don't even have names yet.

Recently in New York there was a trade show in which 50 different exhibitors demonstrated 50 different applications of just solar energy! That is but one of several racing to make tomorrow brighter than any yesterday.

So, June grads, if you don't find the job which is entirely worthy of your talents, few ever do. But you don't have to go to war. You are taller, handsomer and healthier than any generation heretofore.

You can expect more years of pain-free life than any class before yours.

It is unfortunate that a more-than-usual number of your classmates have elected to rot their gizzards with booze or soften their brains with syphilis or get helplessly hooked on some drug.

But look at the how-much-more room-at-the-top that leaves for you!

WE'VE NOT PAVED YOUR STREETS with gold, but you inherit a dollar that has more cents in it than most of the world's currencies, an economy generally on the upbeat, and you get a church door that is still open and unwatched. And you get a new mop and a new broom and a new hoe and a new chance to preserve, protect, defend and improve these things — as we did.

You think you can do better? Show us!

How Ford will rise in the polls

By Louis H. Bean

Roosevelt, every president has gained in popularity with international involvement. Truman picked up some points following his sending troops to Korea. Eisenhower benefited from sending troops briefly to the Middle East and from his stand on the Suez crisis just before the 1956 election. Kennedy's rating improved with the confrontation with Russia over Cuba just before the 1962 election. Johnson's downward ratings trend in 1967 was improved by his meeting with Kosygin in Glassboro. President Nixon's popularity rose with his travels to the Middle East, China, and Russia.

On the basis of this record alone we may reasonably expect Gallup, Harris, and other pollsters to report an improvement in Ford's popularity. But don't be surprised if his rating doesn't shoot back to the 71 percent approval figure he enjoyed on taking office last fall. From experience over the last 30 years, you might expect a typical moderate gain of about 10 points.

But such a gain would not necessarily begin a trend leading to Ford's nomination and reelection in 1976. Truman's popularity record, the most hectic of all presidential ratings, twice fell sharply and revived. But in the third decline his favorable rating dropped to a mere 23 percent by the end of 1951. This and his poor showing in the 1952 New Hampshire primary were followed by his decision not to seek a second full term.

Johnson's initial popularity, equivalent to that of his predecessors — Kennedy, Eisenhower, and Truman — declined steadily with only two brief interruptions. It was down to 36 percent by the end of 1967, matched closely by Ford's pre-European rating. And Johnson's poor showing in the New Hampshire primary in March, 1968, was also followed by his decision not to try for a second full term.

These two experiences do not of course mean that President Ford's positive pronouncement that he means to run for reelection will also be altered by unseen events.

Yet they are minor straws to be filed and remembered. We, of course, have no way of knowing how various United States involvements in far flung international affairs will shape up. But on the national stage there is emerging a two-sided battle that will help determine whether the history of the Ford administration will extend beyond 1976.

We read that Republican strategists plan on capitalizing on the national bicentennial celebration by having President Ford appear at events all over the land. What a positively golden political opportunity! Ford saw this coming opportunity months ago when he considered inflation as the major concern in his administration and promised to win that battle and enjoy prosperity by July, 1976. This is no longer a tenable promise. Since he made that boast, unemployment has risen and embraced more than 8 million persons in the worst recession in nearly 40 years, and government and other economists are not now pointing to any substantial reduction in unemployment a year from this summer. This could considerably dampen hopes of launching the Ford administration into post-1976 history with a positive image.

Webb wins SU Merit Scholarship

Elizabeth Webb of 7302 Hartnell Drive in Austin, has been named the recipient of a Merit Scholarship to Southwestern University at Georgetown, it was announced here this week.

A graduate of Lyndon B. Johnson High School in Austin, Miss Webb plans to specialize in the fields of English and journalism at Southwestern.

Commissioners meet Monday

Williamson County Commissioners will consider Monday the planned use report for the 1975-76 federal Revenue Sharing Funds. The meeting begins at 10 a.m. in the county auditor's office, first floor of the courthouse.

At their May 27 meeting, commissioners decided that $200,000 of the $276,996 funds would be allotted for the county ambulance service.

Other agenda items include a modification of Capital Manpower Consortium, Title I grant under the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

Several hearings will be held concerning subdivisions in western Williamson County.

Police investigations mysterious/and/snakey

Georgetown police have enjoyed a couple of fairly quiet early summer weeks, with the exception of cases involving mysteriously vanished money, and reports of uninvited snakey house guests.

Two Georgetown residents found during the last of May and the first week of June that it doesn't pay to leave your wallet lying in an open car.

One man told police his billfold, containing driver's license and other important papers, was stolen from his car while he was sunbathing at the Booty's crossing.

Another reported $30-$40 stolen from his billfold Wednesday while he was in the city pool and the wallet was in the front seat of the car. A third resident reported a $40.00 check stolen from a table in his home the last day of May. The man said he left the check lying there and explained that both his mother-in-law and his sister-in-law saw it just 20 minutes before he noticed it was gone.

Officers investigated reports of a snake in a yard on E. 18th Wednesday, and another of a rattler holed up in a barn on E. Morrow Thursday. The snakes must have heard the officers coming—they were gone when the police arrived.

Also, an unfortunate Georgetown man had to settle for only part of the pickup he left near Lubbock when it blew an engine April 1. He reported to police that he returned to Loop 281 in West Texas, where he left the vehicle two months ago, to find it stripped of two tires, the air conditioner, radio, fan belt, battery, and radiator. He brought back the leftovers and reported the incident for insurance purposes.

MAKING WAY...

The drawbridge makes way for the boat to come into the city and down the canal. Dredges make canals in open waters such as the gulf to make way for ships to travel an inter-coastal waterway. Police officers and secret service men clear a path in the crowds to make way for an important foreign potentate so that he might arrive at his destination.

Church members are the ones who can clear the way, and show the right path to those who have not found the way to our Lord.

Isaiah 40:3B reads, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert a highway for our God."

Support your church in every way you can. Ask someone to attend church with you this week.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for men and of His demand for men to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long endure, and the freedom which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, ever from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it sets the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Grohman and Jones at Legion Boys State

The thirty-fifth annual American Legion Boys State sponsored by the Department of Texas and held on the Campus of the University of Texas, got under way today as 900 high school boys from all parts of Texas, and two from Mexico, began registration. James W. White, Department Commander, announced.

Thomas Michael Grohman will represent Georgetown and Jimmy Jones will represent Jarrell, sponsored by local American Legion Posts.

Following registration, each citizen was assigned to one of two political parties—the Nationalist or Federalist. Each citizen then functions as a member of his party, he attends its precinct, county and state conventions and votes in its primary.

Boys State helps to develop civic leadership and pride in American citizenship. This program arouses a keen interest in the detailed study of our government. These civic workshops stress the importance of maintaining our form of government and bring better understanding of our national traditions and beliefs to the more than 28,000 young men who are participating this year.

In Boys State, The American Legion provides the type of program where the young citizen has the opportunity to learn for himself that his government is just what he makes it. The boy "learns to do by doing."

The program takes on added significance since the vote has been extended to 18 year olds. Most Boys States are in the 16 to 17 age category.

Highlight of Boys State will be a trip to the Capitol on Tuesday morning where each elected Boys State Official will be given an opportunity to serve in his respective office for a day.

Boys State enrollment this year brings the total to 19,251 junior high school boys who have attended since 1940, when Boys State was first inaugurated in Texas.

City court fines eleven violators

Eleven cases were adjudicated in Georgetown Municipal Court Wednesday afternoon, including five dealing with violations of the local leash law.

Judge Timothy Maresh found all eleven defendants guilty as charged. He assessed nine of them fines totaling $184.00. Two others found guilty of misdemeanor theft forfeited cash bonds of $27.50 each as penalty.

Five of the fines, totaling $97.50, were assessed in consequence of violation of the leash ordinance. Animal Warden Fred Langenegger brought complaints against three animal owners, and a Georgetown resident filed against two others.

Charges against four other defendants included speeding, exhibition of acceleration, and unsafe backing.

New counselor publishes article on quarter system

Notice has been received by Joe Eivens who was hired Georgetown High School counselor the at the May meeting of the school board that his article on the quarter system in the public schools has been accepted for publication.

Eivens' article, entitled
"Color the Quarter System Orange," will appear in an un-coming edition of the Texas Outlook, official publication of the Texas State Teachers Association.

educational progress, and how it has worked at Levelland High School.

WANTED: Duplex or older home suitable for converting into apartments. In good condition and priced reasonably. 863-5517 or 863-3037.
st-m6c12

According to Eivens, many teachers and administrators are rather apprehensive about the transition from semester to quarter system, which begins for all Texas schools next September. Levelland has been under the quarter system for three years.

Eivens attributes the unusual title of his article to the chance remark of a student he was counseling.

WANTED: Good used guitar. Call 863-5997 after 5.
st-mtfn

"A lot of it is just plain anxiety," Eivens stated. "Those that are so worried don't think about all the advantages it has,
or the versatility it gives students and faculty."

"The semester system was
'grey' and the quarter system is
'orange,' in that it is flexible, exciting and different."

SU project boosts city toward impressive building year

Plans to begin a $2 million facility at Southwestern University sent the total value of building starts during May skyrocketing, as Georgetown continued toward its best construction year since 1972.

That total boosts construction value for the year so far to $3-$43,835.95, which indicates the city could surpass its best previous year, 1972, if building continues at the same pace.

According to the monthly Building Department report completed Tuesday by administrative assistant Gloria Duffy, construction of a new physical education facility at SU was one of 22 projects the city okayed last month, at a

The year-end total for '72 was $4,655 million; with the second quarter of 1975 not quite ended, Georgetown stands just over $1 million short of the previous high.

Total value of approved construction for the first five months of 1974 was only $1,374-325.

The May total bested that of April by $2,105,350. It also far exceeds the May 1974 mark of $185,900.

Of the 22 permits issued,
three were for new single-family dwellings, total value $59,400. Six multi-family dwellings, quadplexes to be built near the new Georgetown High School, were also approved.

The Building Department issued permits for alteration of seven dwellings (total value $3-600) and two commercial buildings (valued at $2,300).

Williams — Behrens
Miss Charlotte Celeste Williams became the bride of Richard Garth Behrens, Saturday, at the home of her grandfather, T. M. Williams.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Hal David Williams of Florence. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Behrens of Sonora. The Rev. Ed Jennings read the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride's gown was of ecru cotton designed with a banded neckline. Lace insertion accented the long tiered skirt and long sleeves. Her headdress was springs of baby's breath and she carried a nosegay of mixed spring flowers. Her jewelry was a cameo necklace and earrings belonging to the groom's mother.

Miss Lisa Williams, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Garland Jaecks of Georgetown was best man.

The bride is a graduate of Florence High School and the groom is employed with the Behrens Construction Co.

Massive blackouts feared by TP&L

Massive electric blackouts and brownouts were predicted by Texas Power & Light Company president, J. F. Skelton, if natural gas is prohibited as a boiler fuel for generators at Texas power plants.

Skelton filed his comments Tuesday with the Texas Railroad Commission during a hearing in Austin regarding the banning of natural gas for producing electric power.

"We are acutely aware of the energy problems in Texas, both now and in the future, and we share the concern of the Texas Railroad Commission with regard to our dwindling supply of natural gas," Skelton said. "But if the Railroad Commission were to prohibit the use of gas as a boiler fuel in the next five to 10 years — or even longer — Texas Power & Light Company would simply be unable to generate the electricity required by its customers."

He explained that 85 per cent of TP&L's generating capacity is dependent on natural gas. Without this important fuel, he declared, "hospitals, schools, industries and residences would suffer massive brownouts and blackouts."

A renewed dispute is casting a shadow over the most momentous case now before the U.S. Supreme Court — whether or not any state death penalty law is constitutional.

A major issue is: does capital punishment deter homicides? At least 32 states have passed mandatory death statutes since the 1972 ruling to meet the justices' objections to the arbitrary and discriminatory nature of previous death penalty laws.

An economics professor at the University of Chicago — Dr. Isaac Ehrlich — claims, in a recent mathematical study, every execution may result, on the average, in "seven or eight fewer murders."

Nearly all previous studies indicate capital punishment is no deterrent to homicide.

A ruling by the court — expected in a matter

Capital penalty issue back in U.S. spotlight

The Christian Science Monitor

of weeks — will likely effect 280 men and 3 women sitting in "death row" in 24 states.

The court received the study for its consideration from the U.S. Justice Department, which argued in April for the death penalty.

The possibility that a Supreme Court majority will cite the study in order to overturn its 5-to-4 1972 decision restricting the death penalty as then administered, is unlikely, court observers say. The study does not yet qualify as a well-recognized reference work.

Still, scientists, lawyers, and social scientists are vigorously attacking Dr. Ehrlich's methods and conclusions. Abolitionists worry that if only one justice switches his vote because of the Ehrlich study, state death penalty statutes could be upheld.

A counterstudy submitted by defense lawyers of the NAACP Legal Defense Fund argues that the Ehrlich study is "riddled with theoretical and technical errors..." and is "...an abandonment of scientific method."

Dr. Ehrlich, who has personal reservations about capital punishment as a desirable form of punishment, used a technique called "linear regression analysis" to support his conclusions.

Often used in the financial world to predict unemployment and inflation rates or the impact of a tax on consumer spending, the technique ventures on shaky ground, Dr. Ehrlich's critics point out, when applied to social and legal questions such as capital punishment.

In using the technique, Dr. Ehrlich assumes that murder rates depend on such factors as amount of money spent on law enforcement, unemployment rates, percentages of youth in an area, and probabilities of arrest, conviction, and executing a particular murderer.

Assigning values from 1933 to 1969 to these variables and feeding them into an equation and a computer, Dr. Ehrlich arrives at his result that each execution may deter eight murders.

Dr. Ehrlich contends that previous studies did not distinguish between the deterrence of actual executions and simply the existence of a death penalty law. Arbitrary imposition of the death penalty may not deter offenders, he assumes.

But critics, such as David E. Kendall, a Legal Defense Fund attorney, say Dr. Ehrlich leaves out such variables as handgun ownership, drug abuse, racial tensions, and urban crowding in his equation.

Despite the debate, both sides agree that it is not whether the death penalty deters but whether it provides more of a deterrent than life sentences or other harsh sentences.

The case of Jesse T. Fowler v. North Carolina now before the Supreme Court raises the issue of mandatory death penalty sentences.

LEAVE 'EM BEE — Visitors to the Williamson County Courthouse Wednesday got buzzed for a while if they entered by the east door. A hive of honey bees found a tree beside the east walk attractive, and they frequently formed a cloud right in the path to the door. County officials called Walburg apiarist John Nietschke to the scene, and he gathered the bees into the box pictured. Nietschke first persuaded the queen into the box, and the rest of the little critters followed.

Ft. Hood to celebrate army's birthday

The Army's 200th Birthday will be celebrated at Ft. Hood, Tx., on Saturday, June 14. It will be the commencement of the Army's National Bicentennial Celebration as a major event in American Independence.

The day's activities, lasting from 10 a.m.-10 p.m., will include a large static display of over 50 military weapons and vehicles and over a dozen displays of weapons and equipment. Open House will also be held in the post's major recreation and facilities and clubs.

During the day, Ft. Hood visitors will be entertained with military vehicle rides, demonstrations by the famed 1st Cavalry Horse Platoon and the motorcycle platoon, a sky-diving demonstration and an Army marksmanship booth equipped with BB guns and knockdown targets.

Refreshment and sandwich booths as well as rest areas will be available for the visitor's convenience. A Visitor's Information Center, a Lost and Found Center, first aid station, and shuttle bus service will be provided to further assist the guest.

The day's activities will end with the presentation by the 2nd Armored Division of a historical flag pageant entitled "These Flags We Have Followed," followed by a fireworks display.

Use as little water as possible when boiling potatoes to prevent loss of important vitamins and minerals. Save the liquid to be used as part of the liquid ingredient when making cakes, quick breads and other baked goods.

If the Consumer Product Safety Commission's proposed standards for making household items impervious to carelessly handled cigarettes are approved, costs of furniture are expected to increase from 10-25 per cent by 1976.

such a question, and added that the matter was one for the City Council to decide.

Walden reminded the group that it was their function to ascertain that plats meet all legal requirements before submission to the Council, adding that this placed the decision with the Commission.

The commissioners agreed the matter was probably a decision for them, but came to no firm policy concerning whether to require the vacating ordinance.

The agenda for the Commission's next meeting, at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 1, includes:

- Submission of preliminary plats for residential development near Gabriel View Drive.
- Annexation of the Quail Meado I and II areas.
- Presentation of a proposed Historical Zoning Ordinance by a citizens' committee.

Film series ends and begins

One film series concludes this week and another gets warmed up for those interested in the study of the history of art and culture.

The last of a six-part film series entitled "Pioneers of Modern Painting" will be shown Tuesday evening at 9 in the courtyard of Moody Shearn-Herman Brown at Southwestern University and again at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the City Library of Georgetown.

This film focuses on the life and works of Edvard Munch, the only non-Frenchman featured in the series. Previously the film subjects have been Henri Rousseau, George Seurat, Claude Monet, Paul Cezanne, and Edward Manet.

The new film series, "Civilization," began just last week and will have two of its 13 parts shown this week.

"Romance and Reality" will be shown Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Music Room of Southwestern University's Student Union building, and again at noon at the Georgetown City Library.

This film explores the High Gothic world, of chivalry and of courtly love, and the adoration of the Virgin. It shows the worldliness of the courts with their brilliant art and pageantry contrasted with the joyous asceticism of St. Francis.

This was the period which saw the creation of Dante's great epic, the monumental painting of Giotto and the sculptures of Nicola and Giovanni Pisano, which epitomize the Gothic spirit.

The second film, "Man-The Measure of All Things," will be shown Thursday at 7 p.m. at Southwestern and at noon Friday at the City Library.

This film shows the dramatic emergence of the modern world in 14th century Florence, the city of the Medici—among the world's greatest patrons of art. It was a period when man felt that through the power of his rediscovered individuality he could accomplish wonders.

Jarrell Trustees to draft new school plans next week

Jarrell school trustees failed Wednesday night to come up with new plans for upgrading their school facilities as scheduled, and voted to hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday, June 12, in the school's Special Services Room for that purpose.

NO PATRONS attended the Wednesday night meeting, at which the board members decided to personally inspect the Jarrell school buildings during the next week and to draft a plan for improvement of the buildings for presentation to the Texas Education Agency (TEA).

The board also decided to cancel a planned June 10 meeting for a hearing of the new plans by Jarrell school patrons.

Formulation of plans was the ninth item on Wednesday's agenda, but the trustees found they were not prepared to develop the plans when they reached that point.

Trustee Bud Stockton then suggested that board members tour the school facilities individually, list needed repairs and improvements, then compile the lists into a plan for upgrading at a special meeting.

"We all have enough experience in different areas that we could make a pretty good inventory ourselves," Stockton told the other trustees. He added, "What we need to do is get our house in order right now."

Queries as to a possible deadline for submission of improvement plans to TEA, Jarrell School Supt. A. L. Lytle told the board, "It's got to be in before the end of June, before the States Board (of Education) meets; actually, they (TEA) wanted it before June 15."

Lytle had not previously cited any firm deadline for submission of the new plans.

The Jarrell school system is currently on probationary status with TEA's Accreditation Division because of deficiencies in school facilities.

TEA accreditation teams visiting the system in the past two years have cited shortcomings in both educational programs and facilities according to the agency's standards, but recent teams have declared their satisfaction with improved curriculum and programs.

TEA has thus narrowed its complaints mainly to the 59-year-old Jarrell High School building.

Trustees gained TEA approval of plans to replace the building, but Jarrell voters defeated a $650,000 bond proposal to finance the project in March, necessitating formulation of new plans acceptable to TEA.

Board member Stockton said Wednesday night, "our objective now would be to upgrade facilities we have; we have to develop a preventive maintenance policy."

"We can tour the plant ourselves, list things we see that are wrong, and make an estimate of the cost to repair them," he added.

Lytle directed the board's attention to the school's cafeteria, where he said picnic table-type seating and an electrical wiring system installed in 1950 need to be replaced.

He reassured the board that TEA is dissatisfied only with aspects of Jarrell's school facilities.

He reviewed efforts to meet TEA's standards during the 1974-75 school year, citing four particular achievements by the board.

"We have attempted to upgrade the curriculum," he told the board, "we have instituted more individualized instruction, more in-service training days, and we have attempted a bond election to finance a new high school."

He added that Dr. Phillips had personally assured him the school system would retain its accreditation at least through the 1975-76 school year as a result of TEA's belief in the board's good faith.

As for accreditation beyond that point, he told the board, "Dr. Phillips' words to me were, 'it will depend entirely on this plan.'"

After the meeting, Lytle told reporters he was confident Jarrell would retain its accreditation. He also explained the board's failure to propose immediate plans; he said most board members are presently engaged in harvesting through the early evening hours while there is daylight and so find it difficult to inspect school facilities.

In other action, the trustees appointed five persons to the Jarrell Board of Tax Equalization in closed session. They are:
